

Bouchuukou (Insect Repellent)

"Bouchuukou" (insect repellent) is made of fragrant wood, and is used to protect a "kakejiku" (hanging scroll) from insect damage. Other repellents, such as naphthalene, may damage a kakejiku.

001. Start

002.

Take the paulownia box containing the kakejiku, out of "tatoushi" (the heavy paper box).

003. Open the paulownia box.

Bouchuukou (insect repellent)

004.

Put the bouchuukou into the paulownia box. Please do not put a bouchuukou directly onto/under your hanging scroll to avoid any trouble that may arise. One sheet of paper/cloth between the hanging scroll and the bouchuukou would be perfect as shown in the above picture.

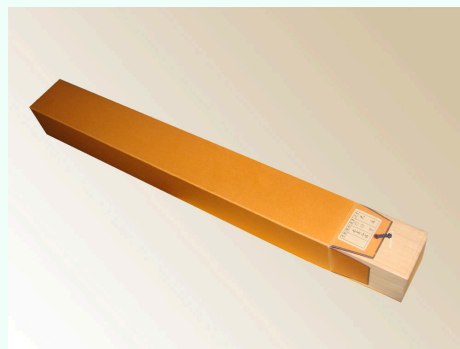

005.

Place the kakejiku into the paulownia box.

006. Close the paulownia box.

007.

Put the paulownia box into the tatoushi paper box. Check to ensure the vertical/horizontal direction of the paulownia box is correct.

008. End